INDEX.

A.

Art, 308, 615.

B.

Belles Lettres, 288, 596.

C.

Contemporary Literature. See Theology, Philosophy, Politics, Science, Philology, History, Biography, Voyages, Travels, Belles Lettres, and Art.

D.

Decline of Party Government, 125—history of the great parties, 127—influence of society, 129—the middle class, 131—effect of the Reform Bill, 133—Sir Robert Peel, 135—influence of education, 137—patronage, 139—the opposition, 141—our administrative system, 143—the Foreign Office, 144—absence of responsibility, 145—real reform of slow growth, 147—society for administrative reform, 149.

Drunkenness not curable by Legislation, 463—early aspect of the temperance movement, 465—the Maine Liquor Law, 467—effects of the same, 469—means taken to support the law, 471—prospects of further enactments, 473—progress of the individual, 475—compulsory systems, 477—probability of a reaction, 479—other instances of prohibitions, 481—the licensing system, 483—Sunday closing, 485—the Act of 1854, 487—true method of diminishing drunkenness, 489—prohibition cannot be tried with impunity, 491.

E.

Earth and Man, 151—geological formations, 153—granite mountains, 155—ancient seas, 157—the formation of soil, 159—our savage ancestors, 161—the stone period, 162—the bronze period, 163—the formation of the new land, 165—geological effects of agriculture, 167—the earth's inhabitants, 169.

Evangelical Teaching: Dr. Cumming, 436—the popular preacher, 437—characteristics, 439—unscrupulosity of statement, 441—manual of Christian evidences, 443—the "short and easy method," 445—creed of the infidel, 446—treatment of infidels, 449—suicidal arguments, 451—treatment of Romanists, 453—moral influence of his prophetic theory, 455—specimen of analogical reasoning, 457—"glory of God" as a motive, 459—his idea of God, 461.

F.

Foreign Policy of the United States, 170—America in relation to the war, 171—the American Press, 173—sympathy between Russia and America, 175—Anglo-Saxon extension, 177—anti-gressive influence, 179—slavery in Cuba, 181—Cuban grievances, 185—non-intervention the rule for England's policy, 187—the Emancipado question, 189—the principle of annexation, 191—our policy in the Cuba question, 193—secret diplomacy, 195—politics in the States, 197—the "Know-nothings," 199—foreign policy of the "Know-nothings," 201—Amalgamation of the races, 203.

H.

History, Biography, Voyages and Travels, 267, 579.

I.

International Immorality, 37—a predominant illusion, 39—candid à priori view, 41—guilt is somewhere, 43—the new Apostles of morality, 45—effects of speaking truth, 47—what is moral influence, 49—conscience makes us cowards, 51—recognition a question of justice, 53—Parga and Genoa, 55—Venice, Poland, Turkey, Persia, 57—Sicily, 59—China and Affghanistan, 61—Cracow and Portugal, 63—blue book of Hungary, 64—affairs of Rome, 65—blockade of Athens, 66—affairs of Burma, 67—our Austro-Turkish morality, 69—popular policy, 71.

L.

London Daily Press, 492—the first printed newspaper, 493—prospectus of The Daily Courant, 495—"Mr. Samuel Buckley, the learned printer," 497—the stamp duty, 499—Addison, ib.—establishment of the morning papers, 501—Leigh Hunt's description of The Press, 503—Mr. Walter's defence of his management of The Times, 505—persecution of The Times by the Government, 506—Hazlitt's description of The Times, 507—inconsistency of The Times, 509—evidence of the stamp returns, 511—Sir Robert Peel's letter, 513—The Times' opposition to the Whigs, 515—why the working-classes prefer The Times, 517—effect of the breaking up of parties, 519—responsibility of the Times, 521.

M.

Marcus Tullius Cicero, 353—the study of his writings, 355—extraordinary commissions, 357—character of Cicero's letters, 359—his Greek education, 361—Rome under Sulla, 363—Cneius Pompeius, 365—the impeachment of Verres, 367—the Catilinarian plot, 369—the triumphant success of Cicero, 370—his infelicities, 371—his conduct as pro-consul, 373—leisure and letters, 375—last scene of all, 377.

P.

Philology, 264, 574.
Politics and Education, 225, 543.

S.

Science, 240, 557.

Self-Education, 73—school education, 75—early training, 77—tutors and scholars, 79—the orphan's education, 81—nature's scholar, 83—the Doo-cot cave, 85—experimental learning, 87—Hugh Miller, 88—James Ferguson, 89—Self-taught men, 91—Man's object on earth, 93.

Spinoza, 1—Cautions against hasty judgment, 3—methods of knowledge, 5—metaphysics of simple ideas, 7—theory of necessary existence, 9—necessary existence of God, 11—the immanent cause, 13—nature of evil, 15—past and future forms of human thought, 17—the harmonic pré-établie of Leibnitz, 19—relations of matter and mind, 21—correspondence of attributes, 23—possible properties of matter, 25—ethics of Necessitarianism, 27—active and passive nature, 29—knowledge of God the strength of the human soul, 31—the Spirit which is in all things, 33—the affirmations of intellect and of conscience, 35.

T.

Teetotalism, physiological errors of, 94—anti-gin bakers, 95—alcohol is food; use is not the same as abuse, ib.—greatness of the temperance cause, 97—Dr. Carpenter's Essay on the use and abuse of alcohol, ib.—argument from excess, 99—the great fallacy, 101—what is food? 103—alcohol is food, 105—alcohol replaces food, 107—alcohol saves our tissues, 109—alcohol is nutritious, 111—slow poisons, 113—the danger of alcohol, 115—wine the milk of old age, 117—beneficence of alcohol, 119—temporary stimulus, 121—must moderation lead to excess? 123.

Theism, 319—universal interest of the subject, 321—the Bridgewater Treatises, &c., 323—the supposed Atheistic tendencies of the "Vestiges," ib.—the doctrine of Hume, Auguste Comte, and John Stuart Mill, 325—mind as the causal energy, 327—man as the mirror of nature, 329—illustrations of beneficent design, 331—design as exhibited in man, 333—philosophic incompleteness of the argument, 335—its practical inefficiency, 337—argument from conscience, 339—the anomalies of pain and death, 341—moral evil in man, 343—characteristics of modern scepticism, 345—failure of the Theistic argument, 347—relations of revelation to the subject, 349—the Divine existence an intuition, 351.

Theology and Philosophy, 205, 522.

W.

Woman, position of, in barbarism and among the ancients, 378—the development of woman, 379—women not immortal, 381—infant-betrothal, 383—wife-stealing, 387—wife-buying, 391—dependence of Hindu women, 397—wife-buying in India, 399—the duty of a Hindu wife, 401—wife-buying among the ancient Hebrews, 403—prices paid for wives by Mahomet, 405—laws concerning adultery, 407—laws concerning divorce, 409—Greek women in the heroic times, 413—Athenian notions of women, 415—position of women in Greece, 416—Greek heiresses, 417—Greek laws of divorce, 419—the ancient Romans, 421—the Patria Potestas, 423—the Usucapio, 424—the Confarreatio, ib.—modes of transferring Roman women, 425—the rights accorded to Roman women, 427—laws of divorce among the Romans, 428—the social progress of the Romans, 429—the Barbarians and Asiatics, 431—the Romans, 435.